

Mediterranean seminar and field trips
(227.4069) Semester A, class 6003

Time: Mon 11:15-12:00- Please note that a short introduction, including the assignments to the course will be given in the first class of the course Challenges in the Mediterranean Sea (227.4068). Additionally, in the first two weeks, the course will not take place. The course is coordinated with the course Challenges in the Mediterranean Sea (9:00-11:00) and during the semester the time of the course may change between 9:15-12:00 and can last up to three academic hours.

Instructor: Prof. Tamar Lotan and Dr. Revital Bookman

Office Hours:

Dr. Tamar Lotan Mon 14:00-15:00, Room 265, Phone 8240034, email-lotant@univ.haifa.ac.il

Dr. Revital Bookman Mon 15:00-16:00 Room 268, phone 8248972 email-rbookman@univ.haifa.ac.il

Course Type: Seminar and field trips

Course Level: MA, MSc

Pre/co-Requisites: Challenges in the Mediterranean Sea (227.4068)

Course Overview:

The course will discuss current topics relating to challenges in the Mediterranean, from natural sciences, through the humanities and social sciences, to politics and current-day policies. The discussed topics will be selected by the students in the first meeting. The lecturer will prepare a short presentation using scientific papers or reports and will be responsible for conducting a class discussion on the relevant topic.

In addition two field trips will take place.

Requirements: Attendance is mandatory in the class and field trip, seminar preparation and presentation, field trip preparation and written report.

Grading:

Field trip preparation and report 30%

Seminar and discussion 70%

Website: Moodle